Hi Anne,

Yesterday I met with leadership services and I now would like to address the meeting of the Trustees, hopefully at the next meeting, concerning club athletes on public school teams.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Glynis Dorey

Dear School Trustees:

Thank you for your letter of November 20, 2006 which responded to my email of November 12, 2006.

The discussion concerned how the evolution of inter-school sports has lead to an unbalanced competitive environment where a large number of students involved in sports teams outside the school occupy most of the positions of the school teams in large schools, thus:

- knocking out many other students whose only access to sports development (self-discipline, self confidence, exercise) and group participation has been in the schools;
- creating an unequal inter-school competitive environment where the large schools stacked with club team members continually win, never giving a chance for smaller schools to win. For example, Strathcona's track& field, swimming and football teams have won the city finals for 10--23 consecutive years!

Your response was basically:

- schools control the number of teams in their school, depending on their abilities to provide support;
- Edmonton Public schools is a district of choice where students can choose there school, consequently resulting with some schools having students flock to it for their strength in sports; and
- The ASAA stipulates that sports clubs players cannot play on both clubs and school teams in the same season.

Firstly, I am surprised that your letter did not show concerned about the current situation and its effect on the many student athletes who are not on club teams.

While schools control their sports teams this is a policy issue which must be addressed at the school board or provincial level since no school will give up their competitive edge if other schools don't also, at the same time. Competition extends to the provincial level, so support for change must come from all administration levels of the school system.

While Edmonton Public Schools' "district of choice" policy may allow athletes to flock to particular schools, it does not mean the other athletic students in that school who are not sport club members should be pushed out;

Restricting sports club players from playing on both sports clubs and school teams in the same season, has resulted in the clubs shutting down during the school team season (3 months) ensuring that most sports club members use the period to compete on the school teams. The club then resumes for the rest of the year. The restriction would be effective only if a sports club player can not play on a school team if they played on a sports club team that year, of the same sport.

Furthermore, during my meeting with the EPSB superintendent's representatives, I was told that the philosophy of the Edmonton Public schools is one of "inclusion". However, the current situation definitely creates "exclusion". We provide multiple programs in our schools for our academics (general, matriculation and IB/AP) but facilitate for the equivalent of the only IB/AP sport athletes.

If the sports club players cannot be excluded from playing their sports in the schools, then the only alternative I can suggest is to alter the structure of the school teams. Instead of large schools having senior and junior teams, they now switch to having A teams where club teams can participate and B team in which they are excluded.

I greatly welcome any other ideas and plead for support so that a positive change will result.

Please acknowledge that we have a serious issue with our inter-school sports teams and ascertain what must be done to resolve this problem.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Glynis Dorey
